GLOBAL HARMONY

DESIGNER: RACHEL LAXER

TEXT: CAMILLA BELTON

PHOTOGRAPHY: MATTHEW MILLMAN

The master bedroom is a lesson in relaxed elegance and testifies to Laxer's love of texture. The composition is muted and the textural nuances subtle. "I wanted the bedroom to be a calm yet glam space," says the designer, who mixed lush cashmeres, velvets and silks, along with a custom leather headboard and custom plaster walls. "When the light hits the walls, the texture is amazing." The room is embellished with modern and vintage pieces: contemporary Robert Kuo stools offer a cool, Asian calm, while an antique green onyx lamp gives that hit of vintage glamour.

Elsewhere, the serenity is punctuated with pops of bright primary colors. "Color is a very personal thing, and it's nice when it comes from the client," Laxer notes. The ikat curtains and cerulean leather chairs steal the show in one guest bedroom, the burnt umbers and warm paisleys in another—the striking hues all celebrating the clients' heritage and love of color.
